

George Fox

INDUCTED IN 2024

Hailing from Cochrane, George Fox began his music career in 1988 when his live show recordings found their way into the hands of a Warner Music Canada representative. Releasing his debut single, “Angelina,” to critical acclaim that year, Fox secured a Top 10 debut and watched his career take off. One short year later, Fox took home the CCMA Award title of Male Artist of the Year (1989), a title he held onto for four consecutive years (1989-1993). Fox’s excellence was also celebrated by the JUNO Awards with him being named Country Male Vocalist of the Year for three consecutive years (1990-1993).

Earning nine RPM Big Country Awards (5x Male Vocalist of the Year, Album of the Year, Single of the Year, Composer of the Year, Country Artist of the Year), Fox has released 10 albums, hosted the CCMA Awards for multiple years (1991-1994) and appeared in countless television specials alongside celebrated artists such as Terri Clark, Rita McNeil and Anne Murray, Garth Brooks, Shania Twain. Fox continues to tour and spends time away from music on his farm with his wife and daughters in southern Ontario.

QUOTE

“I always figured a country song should tell a story, and people can relate to it hopefully, because it’s something that actually happened, there’s a real person in the song.”
